Part III: Essay plans and sample answers

Prompt 1.

1. Topic sentence: SEER helps me decide in a way that follows my conscience.
2. Study: cheating is lying and stealing, unfair, against Church teaching; ask a trusted adult.
3. Elect: pray and choose to say no.
4. Execute: turn down the answers and study myself (fortitude).
5. Review: clear conscience, or admit it, seek forgiveness, do better.
6. Closing: forming conscience means doing what is right.

Sample answer. When a friend offers me the answers to tomorrow's test, the SEER method helps me make a decision that follows my conscience. In the Study step, I look at the facts: cheating is a form of lying and stealing, it is unfair to the students who studied honestly, and it goes against God's law and Church teaching. I could also ask a teacher or parent I trust what they think. In the Elect step, I pray and choose to say no, because cheating is not consistent with who I am as a Catholic. In the Execute step, I actually turn down the answers and study on my own, even if my friend pressures me, and that takes fortitude. In the Review step, I reflect on my choice afterward; a clear conscience brings peace, and if I had given in, I would admit my mistake, seek forgiveness, and do better. This shows that forming conscience is not just knowing what is right but doing it. Using SEER again and again builds the virtues that make the right choice easier next time.

Prompt 2.

1. Topic sentence: conscience is a practical judgment of reason about good and evil; form it, then follow it.
2. Not a feeling: feelings can be out of touch with right and wrong.
3. Not majority opinion: it surrenders responsibility to the group.
4. It is the secret core and sanctuary where we are alone with God.
5. SEER: Study, Elect, Execute, Review.
6. Execute is the true test.
7. Closing: forming conscience is lifelong and leads to a moral, happy life.

Sample answer. Conscience is a practical judgment of reason that helps a person decide whether an action is good or evil, and it must be formed properly and then followed. Conscience is not a feeling, because feelings can be out of touch with what is truly right or wrong. It is also not majority opinion, because following the crowd hands our personal responsibility over to the group. Instead, conscience is the most secret core and sanctuary of a person, where we are alone with God. The SEER method helps form it: we Study the facts using Scripture and Church teaching, Elect the right action with prayer, Execute the decision, and Review it afterward. Execute is the true test, since knowing the right thing is not enough if we do not do it. Forming conscience this way is a lifelong task. A well-formed conscience leads to both a moral life and a happy life.

Prompt 3.

1. Topic sentence: peer pressure can be neutral, positive or negative, and fortitude gives the courage to resist the negative kind.
2. Neutral: fads with little lasting consequence (a style of clothes).

3. Positive: hardworking friends who inspire you to study.
4. Negative: pressure to do what you know is wrong, like leaving a classmate out.
5. Fortitude: firmness in difficulties and constancy in the pursuit of the good.
6. Built through self-denial, prayer and service.
7. Closing: fortitude helps a person care more about conscience than others' opinions.
