| 2. D (Sanctifying grace) | 7. E (Actual grace) | 12. C (Merit) |

| 5. A (Justification) | 10. I (Moral relativism) | 15. F (Charism) |

Part II: Multiple Choice

16. c (Inadvertence). Inadvertence is distraction or not paying attention. Duress is tempting, but no one forced the driver; a driver who chose to text would not be excused.
17. b (duress). Duress: someone forces you to act through threat or fear. Inordinate attachment is about being enslaved to money, not being forced.
18. c (freedom). This is CCC 1731's definition of freedom.
19. c (living under a tyrant). External freedom is freedom from outside factors such as tyranny and poverty. Fear and addiction limit internal freedom.
20. d (Law must be approved by a majority vote). Aquinas: law is an ordinance of reason for the common good, promulgated by the one in charge of the community. Nothing about voting.
21. a (St. Augustine). St. Augustine, quoted by Martin Luther King Jr. in the Letter from Birmingham Jail. Aquinas is the tempting wrong answer because he defined law.
22. b (Ten Commandments). The Old Law (Law of Moses) is summarized in the Decalogue. The Sermon on the Mount and Beatitudes belong to the New Law.
23. c (names and denounces sin but cannot remove it). It is holy, good, and spiritual but imperfect: it denounces sin but cannot remove it. It still teaches forever as the Word of God.
24. a (the Sermon on the Mount). The New Law (law of the Gospel) is the work of Christ, expressed most clearly in the Sermon on the Mount.
25. b (the love of Jesus Christ). The source of all merit is the love of Jesus Christ, whose sacrifice won redemption. "The Holy Spirit" is the common wrong pick.
26. b (the ability to love). Because you are free, you have the greatest power of all: the ability to love.
27. d (gaining wealth). The three drives are preserving life, developing as individuals and communities, and sharing life with others.
28. b (applies natural law to the members of a given society). Civil law applies natural law to a society, so it varies (driving on the right in the U.S., the left in Britain), and it can oppose natural law.
29. c (poverty, chastity, and obedience). Poverty, chastity, and obedience. Faith, hope, and charity are the theological virtues given with justification.
30. b (Confess your sins at least once a year). The precepts: Mass on Sundays and holy days, confession at least once a year, Eucharist at least during the Easter season, fasting and abstinence, and helping provide for the needs of the Church.

Part III: True or False

31. F. Correction: Moral relativism holds that there are NO absolute moral truths.

32. T

33. F. Correction: Habitual grace is another name for SANCTIFYING grace.

34. T

35. T

36. F. Correction: Our intellects are weakened by ORIGINAL SIN.

37. F. Correction: The New Law does NOT add new precepts; it helps us understand the attitudes behind our actions.

38. F. Correction: Catholics are obliged in conscience NOT to follow civil directives that are contrary to the moral order.

39. T

40. F. Correction: Good habits are VIRTUES; bad habits are VICES (for example, gluttony).

Part IV: Essay, what a full-credit answer includes

1. True freedom vs. license. Freedom (CCC 1731): the power, rooted in reason and will, to act or not to act and to perform deliberate actions on one's own responsibility. True freedom is based in absolute truth, which is a person, Jesus Christ; it helps you develop your humanity and enables you to love. License is excessive, undisciplined freedom that abuses true freedom: doing whatever you want while disregarding God's law, your own good, or the rights of others, relying on self without responsibility to God, others, or the environment. That mentality created moral relativism, the belief that denies absolute, universal moral truths ("what's true for you may not be true for me"). Example: "Personally I oppose abortion, but I won't impose my views," or Will Durant: "When liberty becomes license, dictatorship is near." Strong finish: "The more one does what is good, the freer one becomes" (CCC 1733); abuse of freedom always results in sin.

2. The five impediments. To the degree choices are voluntary, we are responsible; every act directly willed is imputable to its author. Impediments (obstacles) can limit culpability: ignorance (truly not knowing the right way to act; a child raised hearing cursing; we still have a duty to overcome it), inadvertence (not paying attention or being distracted; the toddler throwing a toy, unlike choosing to text), duress (being forced through fear or threat; a gun to your head), inordinate attachment (money and possessions enslave a person), habit (repeated behavior; good habits are virtues, bad habits are vices, like gluttony). Impediments limit us but do not have to enslave us: we can learn, build good habits, pay attention, and cooperate with grace through prayer and self-denial.

3. Old Law vs. New Law. Both are revealed law. The Old Law, or Law of Moses, is the first stage of God's revealed law, summarized in the Ten Commandments. It is holy, good, and spiritual but imperfect: it names and denounces sin but cannot remove it (a "law of bondage"), and it gives no grace to fulfill it. As the Word of God its teaching remains forever, and it prepares Jews and Christians for conversion and faith in Christ. The New Law, or law of the Gospel, is the work of Christ and the grace of the Holy Spirit, expressed most clearly in the Sermon on the Mount and summed up in "Do to others whatever you would have them do to you" (Mt 7:12) and "Love one another as I love you" (Jn 15:12). It perfects the divine law (natural and revealed) without adding new precepts: it shapes the attitudes behind our actions, is a law of love, grace, and freedom, makes us friends and children of God, and includes the evangelical counsels of poverty, chastity, and obedience.
